REAL PLAY CITY

OPEN CALL

DEADLINE: 04.OCT.2020
What is the Real Play City Challenge?

Are you a decision-maker in your city that loves play as much as we do? Do you know how much the power of play boosts children’s creativity and development? And have you ever tested city-wide initiatives that integrate play into cities?

Play is essential for children to thrive now and in the future, but many urban environments lack opportunities or a city-wide strategy for play. That’s why the Real Play City Challenge aims to reclaim places to play in cities for children.

The financial, social, and emotional pressure associated with the COVID-19 pandemic faced by children and their families underlines the need for smart-investment and high impact initiatives at scale to enable children to play and cities to build back better.

This is a chance to create real impact for children in cities through the promotion and scaling of placemaking initiatives that inspire city-wide, child-friendly, safe places to play. So, tell us about a city-wide, playful initiative you’ve created that benefits children for the chance to showcase it internationally and replicate it in other cities, enabling access to play for children all over the world.

We want to support, promote, and share initiatives that have the potential to:

▪ Inspire more cities, placemakers, urban planners, real-estate developers, and other stakeholders to take action in child-friendly, safe and playful urban practices.
▪ Optimise, integrate and disseminate international knowledge and experience to strengthen child-friendly, safe and playful urban practice
▪ Enhance impact by catalyzing, replicating, and scaling child-friendly, safe and playful initiatives in different contexts around the globe.

What is child-friendly, safe & playful placemaking?

The cities and urban areas in which children live and grow influence their wellbeing. Play is rocket fuel for children’s learning and development. A stimulating, safe, playful environment supports children’s social and emotional wellbeing, as well as community cohesion for more resilient cities. Every city should be able to provide places for children that reclaim and integrate play in everyday life beyond the playground.

Placemaking is a global movement that transforms public spaces to become the heart of every community. Beyond planning and design, it focuses on the connection between people and the city space in a collaborative process that shapes it for the better. By reclaiming space for play, small interventions can scale up to completely change the childhood experience.

Child-friendly, safe and playful placemaking:

▪ Makes smart investment and high impact interventions in the short term with potential for longer-term resilience.
▪ Tests ideas before making substantial political and financial commitments, Enabling financially constrained cities to build back better from the impacts of COVID-19.
▪ Brings children, caregivers, and the community together through play, enabling play as everyday freedom and expression.
▪ Integrates formal and informal play into public space beyond the playground, transforming spaces that were not associated with play before.
▪ Combines planning, design, social, and research interventions to create real impact for children.
▪ Stimulates the community to take their own initiatives and make an impact with limited resources.
▪ Enables constant, agile assessment and shaping of public space for and with children and the community.

We believe that integrating play and placemaking tools into city space will help cities to create stimulating experiences for children, more livable neighborhoods for families and better cities for all.
Why should I take part?

By taking part you have the opportunity to:

- Showcase your city-wide initiative and be part of a global network of cities, urban planners, and placemakers recognised for action and expertise in child-friendly urban practice.
- Gain insights, ideas, and inspiration from cities, placemakers, and internationally recognised experts to address your challenges and implement creative ideas.
- Attend workshops, webinars, and meetings that support the impact, scaling, and reach of city-wide initiatives.
- Build commitment, investment, and value of city-wide initiatives by providing information to decision-makers in events such as at the Real Play City Challenge masterclass, at the H22 Summit, and at the World Economic Forum’s The Great Reset.
- Showcase your initiative to a high-profile jury and, in case of selection, be recognised as a potential approach to scale impact.

Am I eligible?

The open call for cities welcomes city decision-makers such as mayors, municipalities and city-wide organisations who drive integrating play in cities through city-wide strategies and initiatives. We are looking for proven city-wide child-friendly, safe and playful initiatives that have been successfully implemented, contributed to a measurable impact for children and that have potential to inspire replication, adaptation and action of child-friendly, safe and playful placemaking in cities internationally. We look for city-wide initiatives that

- brought a powerful impact for children between the age of 0 and 15.
- facilitated lighter, quicker, cheaper placemaking principles
- were developed and implemented for and with the community, including children.
- have potential to share, learn and develop with international cities in line with the Urban Play Framework and the City at Eye Level for Kids.
- be a compelling case study that inspires more cities and decision-makers to enable play for children.

By submitting an initiative you confirm that you are available to attend the scheduled events in the timeline in ‘What Happens Next’, agree with our Terms and Conditions and commit to meeting the requirements described in this open call.

Initiatives will be evaluated by a jury panel according to the criteria below. The jury will also support a diverse and balanced selection by selecting initiatives with a range of impact, stakeholders, location, scale and contexts with the potential to mutually reinforce and build international momentum.

- CREATING REAL IMPACT - How does your initiative create a realistic and tangible impact for children, their caregivers and local communities?
- ADDRESSING CHILD-FRIENDLY, SAFE & PLAYFUL FRAMEWORKS - Which dimensions and goals of the Urban Play Framework and the City at Eye Level for Kids does your initiative address and how?
- QUALITY OF PLACEMAKING - how does your initiative stimulate creative, functional, safe and practical placemaking interventions that respond to local contexts.
- EXTENDING THE EVIDENCE BASE - how does your initiative assess and evaluate impact for children, their caregivers and the wider community?
- INCLUSIVENESS & LOCAL CO-CREATION - how does your initiative inclusively engage and co-create with children and the community?
- DELIVERABILITY - what steps did you take to enable deliverability and implementation, including budget, organisation, materiality, construction and risk management.
- CREATIVE SYSTEM OF GOVERNANCE - how did you use creative governance to facilitate bottom-up initiatives at scale and with diverse reach?
To participate in the Real Play City Challenge, you are asked to submit an entry form including a PDF submission in a portfolio style. Submissions are due 4th October at 23:59 (CET). The PDF submission should include:
